AMERICAN JOURNAL OF INDUSTRIAL MEDICINE

American Journal of Industrial Medicine considers for publication reports of original research, review articles, instructive case reports and analyses of policy in the fields of occupational and environmental health and safety. The Journal also accepts commentaries, book reviews and letters of comment and criticism. The goals of the journal are to advance and disseminate knowledge, promote research and foster the prevention of disease and injury. Specific topics of interest include: occupational disease; environmental disease; pesticides; cancer; occupational epidemiology; environmental epidemiology; disease surveillance systems; ergonomics; dust diseases; lead poisoning; neurotoxicology and endocrine disrupters.

ANNUAL REVIEW OF PUBLIC HEALTH

The mission of Annual Review is to provide systematic, periodic examinations of scholarly advances in the field of public health through critical authoritative reviews. The comprehensive critical review not only summarizes a topic but also roots out errors of fact or concept and provokes discussion that will lead to new research activities. The critical review is an essential part of the scientific method.
